"IT HAS BEEN TWO YEARS SINCE HIS DEATH, BUT IT FEELS LIKE YESTERDAY"

Only I, being a mother and an asthmatic patient myself know how painful that could have been for him. I lost my elder son due to asthma while he was working in the field during harvesting season.

As a widow, I struggled to afford medications and I had to confront the reality of my son's lifeless body returning home.

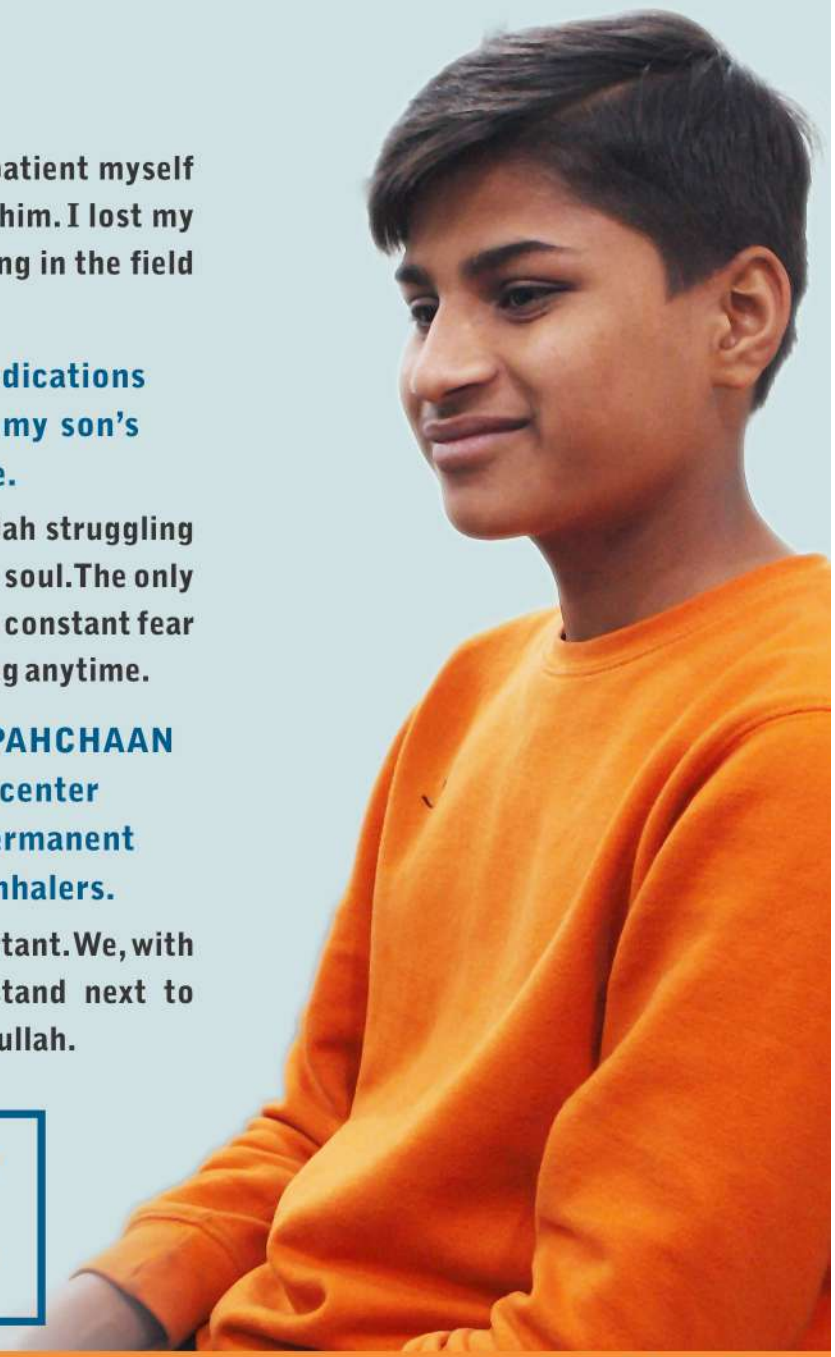

Now, whenever I see my younger son Abdullah struggling to breathe, the same pain emerges within my soul. The only relief is the nearest PAHCHAAN center but a constant fear lingers within me that he could stop breathing anytime.

My worries disappeared the moment PAHCHAAN and the doctors called me to the center and provided both of us with the permanent respite through medications and inhalers.

PAHCHAAN believes that every life is important. We, with the help of our donors, vow to always stand next to mothers like Rani and young people like Abdullah.

“A TRAGEDY OF A MOTHER LOSING HER 18-YEAR-OLD SON TO ASTHMA”

”آج مجھے اپنی نہیں چھوٹے بیٹے کی فکر ہے جو صرف ۱۳ سال کا ہے“

This is just one story; there are thousands of people enduring similar hardships, but their voice remains unheard.

Join hands with PAHCHAAN and don't let people die of the disease that is preventable.

PAHCHAAN

Asthma conditions differ, in some cases when airways struggle to breath, regular medications may not be enough. Pay for two inhalers per month which cost only Rs. 3000.

If possible help multiple patients.
